

Sonya Harrington Bio

I am Sonya Brown (Harrington). I was born in Friona Texas (Dr. Paul delivered me..... I believe it was a very memorial day in his life.) My first 10 years were spent on a farm in Lazbuddie, Texas. I was the oldest (and best) of the children. The two little brothers were just put on earth to irritate me. From there my family moved to Lubbock. I went to Lubbock High School back in the days of flower power and hippies. Not long after graduation I married and had two children. The first was a beautiful little girl we named Danya but she has always been known as D.J. The second was a handsome young man we named Cody. I was lucky enough to be a stay at home mom until Cody started kindergarten. I then decided to attend Wayland Baptist University in Plainview, Texas where I got my degree and a teaching certificate to go with it. (Which, as it turned out was the smartest thing I have ever done.) I taught eighth grade science and coached at Smylie Wilson Junior High, in Lubbock Texas for the next ten years and got to watch the kids grow into two very wonderful young adults. When Cody started college, I decided I needed a break and moved to Denver, Colorado where I got my masters in School Counseling. I soon discovered that there was no place like home and returned to the Killeen area. I chose Killeen because it was semi close to both kids. (Not so close that they could show up unannounced but close enough that I could see them in a few hours' time.) My daughter works as the director of counseling at Temple College. My son is in Houston and is a pilot for Jet Blue Airlines. He also produced me two beautiful little granddaughters, twins named Sofie and Carlie. I have discovered Nami is the best thing I have ever been called. I also have three more "children", all Yorkies, names Scarlett, Marci and Bo. My life is wonderful now. I am back in Texas and have a great job, I couldn't ask for much more. My husband and I will retire soon. Our plans include taking the dogs, the camper and seeing the world!
